While a common goal of Team Building sessions is to have some fun in a different environment, the most important outcome is for the members of the team to really learn and implement those learnings back in the environment with the end result being a truly positive team building effort. This is called Training Transfer. This dynamic Team Building Day delivers the very best training transfer possible. We use accelerated learning techniques to help participants translate the learnings from the activities into real world connections that they can then take back and implement with their team members. Our activities are absolutely fun and engaging, but the real difference is the end result we help you to achieve!

There are multiple “game-like” team-building activities in this full day session. Each activity will be followed by a debrief session that helps the participants to make the learning transfer from the activity back into the workplace. These activities have messages that relate to: Organisational and Team Values, Branding, Behaviours, Understanding of self and others, appreciation of differences and similarities, the value of systems and processes – and having everyone on the same page, breaking silos and building trust.

- Participants will engage in multiple activities that have specific business focus points. These are tailored to best match your company or team’s most needed areas of improvement. (e.g. Organisational and Team Values, Branding, Behaviours, Understanding of self and others, appreciation of differences and similarities, the value of systems and processes – and having everyone on the same page, breaking silos and building trust).
- Engage in a full debrief that helps participants to take the learnings from the session back into the environment
- Have a ton of fun and laughs while learning at the same time!
